

Back of the Net Competition Win for Denbigh's Talented Youngsters

Developing and improving their competitive game was the aim of Denbigh School's Football Academy when they recently participated in trialling free innovative sporting software and, for their efforts, won a new football strip, an iPad Mini 2 and filming accessories.

The software, that Denbigh School is sampling for a year, is designed for local and professional sporting teams to film their games, giving coaches the tools to study and evaluate fixtures. This ensures that teams who use this type of technology will be better prepared for future games and stay ahead of the competition.

As an incentive to take part in Hudl's year long sporting performance analysis software trial, Denbigh School were automatically entered into the American company's competition. The prize of an 18 person football strip, which arrived at the school last week, is already being used by the Football Academy and the team will continue to prepare and strive for future success by utilising the filming equipment.
